His musical influences include various artists like The Chemical Brothers, deadmau5, Eric Prydz, Paul Kalkbrenner, Justice, Cristoph, Third Party, and many others.

In 2018, he embarked on his journey of producing electronic music, crafting a unique sound style that leans toward progressive house with techno elements. His tracks and live performances seamlessly blend these two genres, resulting in a diverse range of sounds and melodies that harmoniously come together to form innovative sonic structures.

Headkube started to gain international recognition in 2020 when he released tracks and an album on the Californian label SLC-6 Music. He received support from renowned international figures such as Armin Van Buuren, Gai Barone, Kollektiv Turmstrasse, and many more.

The following year, he made his debut on Third Party's prestigious label, Release Records, where he released a single and an EP that climbed to the top of Beatport's Progressive House charts. His artistry, performance skills, and production talents were highly praised, earning him the attention and support of major names in the industry, including Above & Beyond, Third Party, Austin Kramer, DJ Ruby, and others.

In 2022, he released an EP on Grum's Deep State UK label, one of the most iconic and influential progressive house and trance DJs worldwide. His single "Rainfall" was featured on the official playlist of Tomorrowland One World Radio.
